A man who is always finicky about his food and always complaining that he cannot eat this or that, threw discretion to the winds, one night early in July, and this is what he ordered and ate in the Hotel Belleclair dining room:

Little Neck Clams
One-half Roast Chicken
Portion of Plain White Bread and Butter
Portion of Corn, off the ear
Pot of Coffee—iced
Huckleberry Pie and Cheese

He then said to Captain Tom:

"I enjoyed my meal very much. Everything tasted good. I haven't eaten so much at one sitting in months. I don't believe that it is going to hurt me a bit."

He came back the next night, smiled at Captain Tom and said: "You know that hearty meal I ate last night gave me no distress whatever. I have about concluded that my imagination has kept me from enjoying a good square meal. I am going to eat what I want hereafter."

He has done so ever since. He experiences no trouble. He dines at the Belleclair most of the time. You see what good food cooked just right will do. Come and try it.
